Looking for some general health guidance. I was playing around during a massage and got cum from the masseuse on my chest. I didn't think anything about this and showered later after our session ended.Â

Can I contract any STD from this simple exposure. I have sores in the same area that are itchy and have pus. Thought they were ingrown hairs, but I've never had them in the center of my chest where my hair is thickest.Â

The only thing that will put your mind at rest is a visit to a medically qualified person, which may include a pharmacist, depending on your location in the world. We can give you all sorts of reassurances which may be correct or may be dangerously wrong. We do publishÂ a list of symptoms and illnesses. I do not have the expertise to match your symptoms to an ailment.

In the UK we have free and anonymous (by law) Sexual Health clinics, often styled G.U.M. clinics, either by appointment or by walk in.

My strong advice is to get checked out. And also to wash your hands carefully after touching the affected areas.

When you go, and I hope you do, remember that they have heard it all before. Any minor embarrassment will be yours alone. They care about your health, no more and no less.
